Destination STYLE Spring 2015 Fashion Show

The Spring Fashion Show will take place on Thursday, May 7th at 6 pm on Main Street between University Avenue and Mission Inn Avenue in downtown Riverside. The Spring Fashion Show will showcase unique fashions and accessories that are available from retailers in downtown Riverside, and is presented by the Riverside Downtown Partnership. Outfits will range from vintage wear, contemporary looks, unique designer wear and men’s formal tuxedos.

Hair and makeup services will be provided by the Riverside Community College School of Cosmetology. “RCC Cosmetology has been partnering with the Riverside Downtown Partnership on their fashion shows for 2 years. So the anticipation and excitement for students to be able to put their skill sets to work in a professional environment highly motivates the students in preparation, delivery and results that this fantastic event provides. Students start talking about the event as soon as they start the program. Students attending the event not only get to see their skills come into fruition but also walk away extremely proud of their work. The event has prompted students to include this work in their portfolios. It’s a win-win for the students. The students who are at the event are nearing the end of training at RCC and this show allows experiential learning which prepares them for the next big step; employment,” says Peter Westbrook, Director of Cosmetology at RCC.

Signage and a Fashion Show Line Up will be provided so that attendees can easily identify outfits and retailers. Fashionistas can also take advantage of the red carpet photo opportunity at Mezcal Cantina Y Cocina, located next to the outdoor runway. RDP will also be encouraging attendees to return to downtown Riverside on Saturday, May 9th to experience styling expertise, shopping specials, demos, and chances to win one of three specialty gift baskets.

Downtown businesses not in the show are encouraged to participate by offering specials related to the event (such as fashion themed drinks at after-parties) or by having materials at the RDP information table. For more information, please contact the RDP office. To keep connected to Fashion District Downtown Riverside, visit www.facebook.com/FashionDistrictDowntownRiverside.

Riverside Restaurant Week to Return

RDP, the City of Riverside, and the Arlington Business Partnership (ABP) will be partnering once again on Riverside Restaurant Week, a 10 day celebration of dining in Riverside. Riverside Restaurant Week will run from Friday, June 19th to Sunday, June 28th. Participating restaurants will be able to offer a lunch and/or dinner menu item or combination that is either new for Restaurant Week or specially priced, rather than a multi-course lunch or dinner at a fixed price as required by other ‘Restaurant Weeks’.

The City will host the primary website, www.DineRiverside.com, which will be the portal through which restaurants can sign up to participate and through which diners can access restaurant offerings and links to Facebook pages. Advertising will include print ads, website banners, Pandora streaming radio, posters and postcards, electronic billboards, as well as email blasts. This year restaurants will be provided with more support including marketing materials and promotions to drive traffic.

Look for more information in the May BID Bulletin.
Disposition of Former Redevelopment Agency Properties:
The City is required to dispose of most former Redevelopment Agency properties as part of the dissolution of the redevelopment process. There is a number of properties scattered around the city and we have begun the process of disposition of them.

The process does not allow the city to dictate how the properties will be used in the future except as controlled by land use regulations. It can, however, market property for a particular use in the sales process. In an effort to help shape future use of the properties in a manner consistent with community desires the city is seeking input on potential uses of the various properties. Several methods are being tried to accomplish this.

The “Restaurant Row” properties on Merrill Avenue across from the Plaza have had two community meetings where potential uses identified by city staff were shared with the community to ask for input. A similar process was used to seek input on properties in Ward 7.

There are two properties to be sold in Ward 1 and City staff is trying a slightly different process. The properties are along the east side of Main Street either side of Second, and a parcel at the corner of Mission Inn and Chestnut. Meetings will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the old Downtown Fire Station at Lime and Mission Inn on April 8 and April 22 to discuss these properties. No potential development ideas will be brought forward by staff for these properties. Interested parties will be asked to consider the properties a blank slate and to suggest what they would like to see there.

There is some time pressure on the city to complete sale of these properties. Currently, the Redevelopment Dissolution process is overseen by a board of local officials. In June of 2016 the local Oversight Boards will be consolidated into a single countywide board. We would like to market the properties while we have the most local control on their future use.

Please plan to participate in these meetings if you have an interest in the properties or in how they are used in the future.

The variety of methods of seeking public input is partly to determine the best way to proceed with other parcels in the city including the large properties at the former Riverside Golf Course and the Ab Brown Sports Complex. Your input on the methodology will also be appreciated.

Riverside Public Utilities Offers Small Business Conservation Incentives

Riverside Public Utilities (RPU) realizes that small business owners need a little extra help sometimes. That’s why the consumer-owned utility created its Small Business Direct Installation (SBDI) program, which provides funding and assistance for conservation measures that help businesses reduce their energy and water usage.

“For more than a decade, Riverside Public Utilities has offered a variety of programs and services to assist all of our commercial customers,” said RPU’s Assistant General Manager for Marketing/Customer Relations, Michael Bacich. “Our SBDI program makes it easier than ever for our smaller commercial customers to take advantage of the helpful measures this program offers without the need for a lot of cash up front,” Bacich said.

The award winning program, which started in 2011 and is funded by public benefits monies, has assisted more than 4,000 RPU small business customers to date.

After contacting the utility, SBDI participants are met by the program’s vendor, who professionally evaluates onsite energy and water usage. Once the use rates are determined, qualified businesses can receive up to $2,000 in energy upgrades and $500 in water efficiency upgrades for things like lighting retrofits, HVAC system tune-ups; and high efficiency toilet replacements.

“These energy and water savings are not just beneficial to the customers,” Bacich said, “they are also helping us to reach, and surpass, ever changing state-mandated goals for energy and water reductions for utilities.”

RPU small to mid-sized commercial customers can find out more about these, and other energy and water conservation rebate programs and incentives Riverside Public Utilities offers by calling their account representative, going online at GreenRiverside.com, or by contacting the utility at (951) 826-5485.

ADA Compliance/Access

On March 6th, Senator Richard Roth and the Greater Riverside Chambers of Commerce co-hosted a special seminar on ADA Compliance in the County Board of Supervisors Chamber. The seminar was free to Property Owners, Business Leaders, and the Public. The featured speakers were Kimberly Stone, President of the Civil Justice Association of California and Ida Clair, Senior Architect, Certified Access Specialist Program, Division of the State Architect.

Ms. Stone’s presentation introduced the Civil Justice Association of California as an organization that works to protect California business owners from frivolous lawsuits, and educates the public about lawsuit abuse and how it harms consumers and businesses. She prefaced the main part of her presentation by stressing that the information provided was for education only and businesses should obtain legal advice when served with an ADA violation.

Ms. Claire’s presentation dealt with the Certified Access Specialist program and the benefits to a business of hiring one when dealing with non-compliance issues. This information is available from their website at www.dgs.gov/casp

The top ten demand letters and claims on ADA access violations were provided by the California Commission on Disability Access. These were:

1. Loading zone/van access aisles are non-compliant or non-existent.
2. Existing parking spaces are non-compliant.
3. Signage in parking lot is non-compliant. Spaces are not designated as reserved by a sign showing the symbol of accessibility.
4. Curb ramps or entrance ramps are non-compliant or non-existent.
5. Parking lot does not contain the minimum number of accessible parking spaces.
6. Access heights: heights of surfaces such as counters, bars or tables are non-compliant.
7. Routes to and from parking lot or public right of way are not accessible and may include uneven surfaces or lack of detectable warning signs.
8. Accessible features are not maintained.
9. Entry doors are not accessible or are not on an accessible route.
10. Entry doors are not accessible or missing sign/symbol of accessibility.

Businesses must remove all barriers to access if readily achievable. Every ADA violation is a violation of California’s Unruh Act with a potential $4,000 Statutory Penalty plus attorney’s fees, plus the cost of becoming compliant, so it is cheaper for businesses to become compliant and avoid being hit with a lawsuit.

There are tax incentives available for businesses that improve accessibility for customers or employees with disabilities. The Architectural Barrier Removal Tax Deduction provides up to $15,000 a year for qualified expenses that normally would be capitalized. There is also a Disabled Access Credit for small businesses. Information on these tax incentives is available from www.irs.gov

One of the most frequent violations cited in lawsuits is non-compliant signage. ADA compliant signs can be obtained from www.stopsignsandmore.com. For those that prefer to patronize a downtown Riverside business, PIP Printing on Market Street will match the regular price listed on the website plus a $10 set up fee for the first sign.

The above is for information only and not intended to take the place of a CAS or lawyer.
Did you know that there are very specific laws when it comes to email marketing? The CAN-SPAM Act, signed into law in 2003, created a clearly defined set of rules for commercial email. While it’s certainly not new any longer, it is surprising how many small business owners are still not aware of the rules when it comes to using email to communicate with current and potential customers.

Not only can it harm your reputation, but violation can also cause penalties of up to $16,000 per email in violation of the law. Not only is your business subject to these fines, but so is any email marketing service you use to collect email addresses and distribute your messages.

Make sure you protect your business by reviewing these important points in the CAN-SPAM Act and ensure you’re staying within the law every time you send an email.

NOTE: These rules apply to all email messages that are classified as “commercial content.” Commercial content means the message advertises or promotes a commercial product or service, including content on a website operated for a commercial purpose.

1. Headers and subject lines cannot be misleading.
   The headers of your email messages -- “From,” “To,” “Reply-To,” and the routing information including the originating domain name and email address -- must accurately identify the person or business who initiated the message.
   The subject lines of your email messages must also accurately reflect the content of the message and not be misleading.

2. Advertisements must be disclosed.
   You can do it in many different ways, but if your email message is an advertisement, you must disclose it clearly in your message.

3. A postal address must be included.
   All commercial email messages must include a valid physical postal address. It can be your current street address, a registered post office box, or a private mailbox that adheres to Postal Service regulations.
   This is a requirement of most email marketing services, so if you are using a platform to collect addresses and send messages, your address is typically included automatically by your provider.

4. Recipients must be able to opt out.
   Your messages must include a clear explanation of how the recipient can opt out, or unsubscribe, from getting email from you in the future. You can do this in a number of ways as long as it’s easy to find and easy to understand.

5. Opt outs must be handled quickly.
   As part of the opt-out process, you must be able to process opt-out requests for at least 30 days after you send a message. Then, you must honor a recipient’s opt-out request within 10 business days without making the subscriber take any other steps.

   The good news is that if you’re using a third-party email marketing service, which is a smart move for all small business owners, opt outs are typically handled automatically by your provider.

What is Apple Pay?

Apple Pay is a new way for customers to make payments with their credit and debit cards. Customers with the new iPhone 6 and iPhone 6 Plus are able to store their card information on their phone and make payments at participating retailers by touching their phones to a special point-of-sale terminal.

How does it work?

Apple Pay relies on a technology called Near Field Communications (NFC), also known as “contactless payments,” to allow consumers to make payments using their phones, without ever having to take their wallets out. A customer makes a payment by holding his or her phone up to the NFC terminal. Then, the customer touches a finger to the fingerprint reader installed on the iPhone in order to verify his or her identity. That’s it!

Who already accepts Apple Pay?

Many large retailers have started accepting Apple Pay. This group includes companies like McDonalds, Foot Locker, Subway, Office Depot, Whole Foods, Toys R Us and more.

Is Apple Pay secure?

Given all the data breaches that have been in the news recently, security is a major concern for many consumers. Fortunately, Apple Pay makes use of a number of security technologies. In addition to the fingerprint requirement, Apple Pay uses “tokenization.” This means that every time a customer makes a payment through Apple Pay, the transaction is processed using a random string of digits—a “token”—instead of the customer’s actual card number. The retailer never sees or stores the real account number. Each token is only good for one or a limited number of transactions, so the tokens are useless to a criminal who might steal them. This makes a Target-style data breach much less likely.

What are the costs and benefits of accepting Apple Pay?

The main benefit of accepting Apple Pay is that it may help attract new customers and grow your business. First, some customers appreciate the convenience of being able to pay with their phones, and they may frequent retailers that accept Apple Pay. This technology eliminates the need for consumers to handle cash or even carry around a wallet, making the checkout process faster and easier. The main cost of accepting Apple Pay stems from the need to have point-of-sale terminals equipped with NFC technology.

How can I start accepting Apple Pay?

Talk to your card processor to find out about the NFC and Apple Pay options they offer. Be sure to inquire about all related costs, such as equipment and transaction fees.

For more information, use the CMUSA Ask an Expert tool or check out some of the other articles we’ve shared about Apple Pay.

Office of Economic Development: CALED in Riverside April 20 to 22

The California Association for Local Economic Development (CALED) is hosting its annual conference of economic developers in Riverside to discuss how economic developers can work with businesses to ensure economic success and community vitality. The conference will take place April 20 to 22, 2015 at the Riverside Convention Center and the Mission Inn Hotel and Spa in Downtown Riverside and will include opening remarks from the Riverside Mayor, Rusty Bailey. “We are excited to hear what Mayor Bailey has to say,” said CALED President & CEO Gurbax Sahota. “The City of Riverside is a great example of how a local community can support existing businesses, nurture the entrepreneurial spirit, and engage the community through economic development. It is an ideal location for our annual conference.”

The California Association for Local Economic Development is California’s premier economic development association with over 800 members. It is one of the largest economic development associations in the country. Since 1980, when it was created, CALED has led the way in teaching economic developers, local elected officials, and state representatives the value of economic development, and how it is used to create quality jobs, help businesses, and generate revenue to support community development programs. For additional information, please visit www.caled.org.

The two and a half-day conference will include three breakout session tracks: Tried & True, How To, and Next Gen. Some conference highlights include CALED’s 35th Anniversary dinner, a Culinary Crawl through downtown Riverside, an early-morning fun run starting at the Mission Inn, and a ‘Deal Making’ session that focuses on financing projects and businesses. Over 350 economic developers are expected to attend the conference.

We encourage downtown businesses to welcome CALED conference attendees to downtown Riverside and to consider offering specials. If you do plan to offer specials, let us know and we will pass that on to the local organizers.
